BOTTLED BEERS & SPIRITS

The poet and novelist Thomas Hardy clearly enjoyed the Dorset brewery Eldridge Pope ales. He produced a fable for the entertainment of the brewer. In his novel The Trumpet Major he describes the beer of Casterbridge:

“It was the most beautiful colour that the eye of an artist in beer could desire; full in body, yet brisk as a volcano; piquant, yet without a twang; luminous as an autumn sunset; free from streakiness in taste; but finally rather heady. The masses worshipped it, the minor gentry loved it more than wine, and by the most illustrious country families it was not despised. Anybody brought up for being drunk and disorderly in the streets of its natal borough had only to prove that he was a stranger to the place and its liquor to be honourably dismissed by the magistrates as one overtaken in a fault that no man could guard against who entered the town unawares.”
